Hiraethog

Open spaces and open skies, lakes, moors & forests.

The Denbigh Moors (Welsh: Mynydd Hiraethog) is an upland region in Conwy and Denbighshire in the North of Wales, between Snowdonia and the Clwydian Range. It includes the large reservoirs Llyn Brenig and Llyn Alwen, and the Clocaenog Forest, which has one of Wales's last populations of red squirrels.

The area encompasses more than 230 square miles, running from Betws y Coed in the west, including Denbigh, Ruthin and Corwen, and reaching within a mile or two of Llangollen in the east, with Mynydd Hiraethog (Hiraethog Mountain) or the Denbigh Moors at its heart. Located in the heart of North Wales, Hiraethog is a peaceful haven with stunning landscapes and a rich history that dates back thousands of years.

Hiraethog has so much to offer including some of the most spectacular views, forests, moorland & lakes.

For further information on towns and villages, things to do and places to stay whilst you are in the Hiraethog area please visit gonorthwales.co.uk/explore/regions/hiraethog

Snowdon Mountain Railway

Take a once in a lifetime adventure on the Snowdon Mountain Railway, which has been described as one of the most scenic journeys in the world. Trains depart from Llanberis and climb their way to Snowdon summit, a journey experienced by some 12 million travellers since 1896. On a clear day the views can reach as far as Ireland from Hafod Eryri, the UK's highest visitor centre. With stunning scenery and awe-inspiring views, it's a great day out for you and your family in North Wales. Two services are available, the Heritage Steam Experience and the Traditional Diesel Service.
